

Jen King

Jen's love for Jesus is contagious. She grew up going to church off and on, but her journey to truly know God didn't begin until her thirties. Her messages bring a genuine transparency of how God transformed her life from a place of busy, chaotic, self-centered happiness to a place of peace, contentment, and service. Jen co-founded My Sister & Me Ministries and is a wife and mom of 2. She wants to help you understand how God pursues you!

The Illusion of Enough

Do you ever feel the world pressing in on you? Do you have too many voices clamoring for your attention? Life brings so many choices, social pressures and countless ways to spend our time. How can we stay focused on living a life that reflects what we value when we are trying to just keep up?

We've been told we can have it all, be it all and achieve it all, and it looks like others around us are getting it all. Is this a truth or a life-draining illusion? With so many ways to fill our cup, why do we continue to feel incomplete? Let's discover how to stop running ragged and start living with an overflow of joy as we find the true meaning of enough.
